A note from her children: Thanks to the many people who loved our mom, and to her many caregivers. We wish we could hug each one of you right now, but social distancing calls for a private farewell. A celebration of our mom's life will be held a few months from now; to be held when it's deemed safe. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the family, to be divided among charities meant to support those battling the Covid19 pandemic.
