“ If you visited Paul, you soon knew, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that he was a devoted husband. Paul struggled with words after having a stroke. His wife Pat became a master at deciphering his meaning with just a few words. But one day, when Pat had a health issue, Paul was divinely enabled to express his concern. He asked me, “what do you think about my wife?” That seven word sentence may not seem all that significant to someone fully able to speak, but for Paul it was a wonder. His heart was heard and it was full of love and concern for his wife.
And his gentle heart could also be heard in his signature word -
“Well....”
